About Us

VK Solutions was launched in 2010 for the original intent of assisting community banks with training and development. Vicki Kraai was named the new CEO of InterAction Training in 2020. We have made the transition from VK Solutions to InterAction Training, and we now have a larger team of trainers to support you! Our approach is to give you the tools you need in your organization to successfully lead and manage teams that in turn create extraordinary customer experiences turning customers into advocates of your business. We work alongside you to assist with organizational health and creating a culture that sets you apart as an employer of choice. We focus on investing in and developing your people portfolio which improves culture and is one of the best things you can do for your bottom line!

Here are some of the programs/services we offer:

- Train the Trainer Bootcamp
- Leadership training
- Teller and front-line (Customer experience) training
- One-on-one coaching
- Sales/Business Development training
- Talent management
- Talent assessments
- Team Building
- Organizational Culture

What if I train them and they leave? What if you don't and they stay?

Communicating with a high D:

- Be quick, focused and to the point.
- Don't ramble on or waste their time.
- Don't come with decision made or make it for them.
- Don't try to build personal relationships or chitchat.
- Present a win-win strategy.
- Come prepared and organized.

Communicating with a high S:

- Start with personal questions. Break the ice.
- Present your case in a logical, soft and nonthreatening way.
- Don't threaten with positional power or be demanding.
- Don't interrupt as they speak. Listen carefully.
- Show sincere interest in them.

Communicating with a high I:

- Provide ideas for implementing action.
- Focus on people and action items.
- Put details in writing.
- Ask for their opinion.
- Don't leave decisions up in the air.
- Don't drive facts, figures and alternatives.
- Incorporate personal.
- Be positive.

Communicating with a high C:

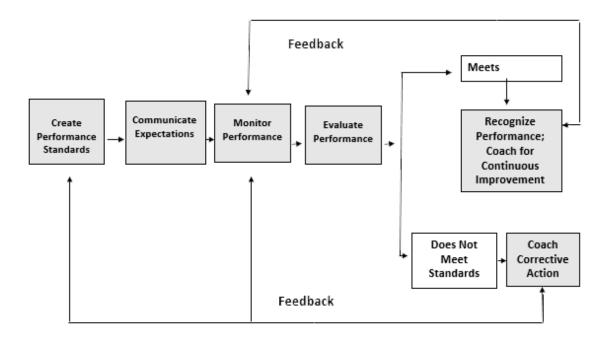

- Allow them their space. Don't touch them.
- Don't be disorganized or messy.
- Don't force a quick decision. Give them time.
- Don't be vague about expectations or fail to follow through.
- Prepare your case in advance.
- Approach them in a straight-forward, direct way.
- How would this be helpful in managing your teams?
- Communicating with your boss?

Excelling at Leading, Supervising & Coaching

Coaching Choices® Model

As we work the Coaching Choices© Model and continue the process of leading and assisting employees on improvement issues, we explore coaching and Choice Theory.

It is not enough to Create Performance Standards, Communicate Expectations, Monitor and Evaluate Performance without working with the employee to improve their behavior or reinforce good behavior. That's where coaching becomes a valuable skill for managers. Why invest in someone through hiring and training, just to lose them because we don't know how to help them achieve better results?

Coaching Choices© is the method.

Your role as a supervisor

It is the single most important activity we are accountable for as managers and supervisors...

"When you were made a leader you weren't given a crown, you were given the responsibility to bring out the best in others." - Jack Welch, Former CEO of GE

Don't put yourself on a pedestal.

You don't know everything. You do know that don't you?

It means you listen with intent to learn rather than show what you know. We need to be coachable.

Knowing the mission, purpose and your WHY.

"Without a mission statement, you may get to the top of the ladder, and then realize it was leaning against the wrong building." – Dave Ramsey

Operating from your WHY, not your what. It's not what you do that matters, it is WHY you do what you do that matters!

Self-Evaluation

Self-evaluation is a skill used by those who want to elevate their personal and professional skills. It takes courage and vulnerability to be honest with yourself. The results help you create a plan to close the gap between where you are now and where you want to be.

On a scale of 1-10 with 1 being low and 10 being high, rate yourself on the following.

Name
Question	Rating
How successful do you want to be as a leader?
Where do you rate yourself now?

Follow-Up Exercise

- 1. What do you consider to be the most important traits and behaviors of a successful supervisor who had your job?
- 2. What abilities, expertise, and know-how do you consider critical to someone who is responsible for managing others?
- 3. How do you describe the attitude required for someone who has your job? (Beliefs about self, others, the company and behaviors)
- 4. How would you like your manager to respond when asked what it's like to work with you?
- 5. How would you want your direct reports to respond when asked what it's like to work for you?
- 6. How would you want your peers to respond when asked what it's like to work with you?

Interesting thought to ponder

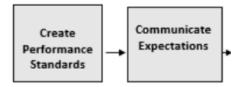

What's the value of this exercise?

What would be the value of this exercise if you asked your direct reports to complete it?

On-Purpose Coaching

As leaders, our job requires us to set expectations for performance. What does this look like in your workplace beyond the job description?

On-boarding must-do's:

- Review the job description
- Review the performance review
- Professional maturity expectations (in the toolkit!)
- Behavior expectations (non-negotiables on my team)
- What happens when they are NOT meeting PERFORMANCE and BEHAVIOR expectations

Appearance

Perception is Key!

Appearance

- Do I look professional?
- Do I feel confident?
- Can I be trusted to take care of your money?
- What are some advantages to looking and dressing professionally for the people we serve?
- Clothing, hair, hands, nails, face, make-up, perfume...
- Too much skin, tattoos, unkept clothing...
- Behaving or acting inappropriately

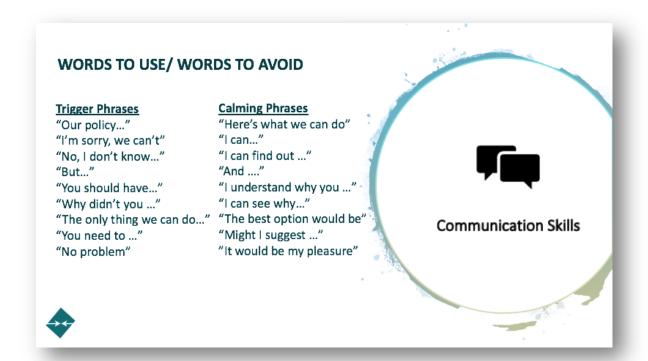

Communication

VERBAL AND NON-VERBAL COMMUNICATION Communication Skills

- Verbal communication words are powerful we need to train on this
- Non-verbal communication can send an even stronger message

Attitude

It's the difference between seeing the glass half full vs. half empty

Positive Attitude

Life is 10% what happens to me and 90% how I react to it – Excerpt from Chuck Swindoll

Careful – Your attitude is showing!

Work Habits

CONFIDENCE Good Work Habits

Without confidence in yourself and your abilities, you will be inclined to avoid challenges and struggle with decision making.

Best practices in building confidence

- 1. Set personal and professional goals
- 2. Be a sponge always willing to learn
- 3. Seek out additional responsibilities to help others
- 4. Take charge of a work project or volunteer
- 5. List What strengths do I bring to the team?

REPUTATION

A good reputation will serve you well all through life.

Best practices in managing your reputation

- Social networking sites build or destroy?
- Trustworthiness

Nothing can tarnish a person's reputation more than being perceived as untrustworthy or dishonest. Social media challenge: How do you want to be perceived?

We MUST train our staff on these components!

On-Purpose Coaching

What happens when we monitor and evaluate, and performance or behavior expectations are not being met?

Our job involves our best shot at getting employees to change their behavior, or to validate the employee so they will continue their behavior/performance. Consider this...

Whatever we allow...continues...

- Employee showing up late to work
- Employee not following the dress code
- Cell phone use in front of a customer
- Employees calling out other employees or being disrespectful

The W D E P system is the guide for lead managers to encourage quality performance in the workplace.

What do you WANT?

What are you DOING?

EVALUATING - Is it HELPING OR HURTING?

What is your PLAN?

\mathbf{W}	D	${f E}$	P
Discuss Wants and	Discuss Direction	Encourage	Formulate a
Perceptions	and Doing	Self-Evaluation	Plan of Action

W - What do you want?

Asking the want questions will help the employee and you, the coach, understand what motivates your employee. Often, employees are not sure how to respond to wanting questions, so it takes the supervisor, asking many questions to help uncover the wants.

Here's how it might sound:

- 1. What kind of change do you want?
- 2. How do you picture things being for you?
- 3. What would it be like if you did have _____
- 4. What do you want your boss to say about you?
- 5. What expectations do others have of you?
- 6. What does your boss want from you?
- 7. What do you want that is different than what others want from you?
- 8. What would you like to talk about?
- 9. What would it take for you to be motivated?
- 10. Do you want to talk about _____ this morning or this afternoon?

D – what you are doing?

- 1. What are you doing to accomplish the goals you have set to get the things you want?
- 2. What are the specific, process-centered actions you are taking to get what you want?
- 3. If you keep on doing what you're doing now will it help get you closer to or further away from your goals?
- 4. What are you doing now to get what you want?
- 5. What have you tried that works for you?
- 6. What have you tried that did not work for you?
- 7. What action have you taken?
- 8. Is there a 'go-to' behavior that you depend on to get you_____?
- 9. Tell me what you are doing that is working?
- 10. Tell me what you are doing that is not working for you?

E - Evaluate what you are doing is it helping or hurting?

- 1. On a scale of 1 -10, how successful do you want to be in your current role?
- 2. Is what you're doing getting you closer to what you want or further away from it? (twice)
- 3. How is what you're doing helping you get what you want?
- 4. How realistic or attainable is what you want?
- 5. How does it help you to look at it from that point of view?
- 6. How committed are you to the process and to changing your life?
- 7. If you can't have what you want what are you willing to change?
- 8. Is this something that is O.K. for you?
- 9. What is your responsibility in this matter?
- 10. How do you feel when you do that?
- 11. Would you want others to relate to you that way?

P - what is your plan?

Outcome- or goal-centered plans versus Process-centered Plans

A process-centered plan focuses on the action the person can realistically accomplish apart from any ultimate result. Below are examples:

Outcome- or Goal-Centered Plans	Process-Centered Plans
To get along better with coworkers.	To compliment coworkers on things they do well. To not make fun of my coworkers.
To increase my production.	To increase my production by 5%.
To handle my anger better.	To count to 10 before saying anything when I am mad.
To improve my attendance.	To come to work every day.
To come to work on time.	To get up 15 minutes earlier on workdays.
To get healthy.	To eat balanced meals; walk 20 minutes per day.

Process-centered plans are realistic, attainable, and dependent only on the person making the plan. Outcome- or goal-centered plans are attained only as by-products of process-centered plans. Yet goals are very important. People are more likely to function in a healthful manner if they have identified their wants (goals) clearly and precisely.

As plans are made it is important to commit to the plan. This symbolizes closing the deal, signing the contract, or shaking hands on the plan.

On a scale of 1 to 5, with 1 being "not committed" and 5 being "very committed," how committed are you to this plan?

When will you do it? When will you begin?

What are the consequences if you don't do it, or if you change your mind?

Here's what WDEP may look like...

These questions can be answered with yes or no. To engage your coachees beyond yes or no, a good technique is to add openers like: "tell me your thoughts about whether what you want is realistic or attainable."

On a scale of 1-10, how successful do you want to be in this job?

Is your action helpful in getting the job done?

Is your action helpful to others?

Tell me what you are doing that is working?

What do you want your co-workers to say about you?

Would you like some help and advice regarding that?

I can understand how frustrating it can be to experience a customer yelling at you. (fact). I can see why you'd react that way. I think you will increase your chances of success if you...

How well is that working for you?

Additional Dialog Starters

When you are addressing performance or behavior issues there isn't 'one right way' to start. However, yo to make sure the employee knows that these meetings or discussions are a serious matter that you a Company deem important.

Here's	how you might begin the conversation:
1.	"The reason I've called you in today is to discuss"
2.	"In reviewing your attendance record, I notice that"
3.	"When you do, what I tell myself about you is"
4.	"The standard for acceptable performance in this area is"
5.	"You are only meeting 60% of your goal in the area of"
6.	"I want to talk to you about your performance."
7.	"Your behavior in not accepting (the new employee) into the work group is inappropriate and disrespectful."
8.	"It has come to my attention that"
9.	"Mary informed me that you acted in an inappropriate manner when you were talking to her about your work orders."
10.	"I want to discuss an important and serious matter with you."
11.	"Thanks for taking the time to because of your support, I was able to"
12.	"You did a great job onI thought was particularly effective because"

14.	"I understand how (feeling) it can be to experience (fact)."
15.	"I can see why you'd react that way. It can be (feeling) when (fact) happens."

- 16. "From what you've said, it sounds like you're (feeling) about (fact)."
- 17. "What could be your next step?"
- 18. "How do you anticipate handling that? What ideas do you have?"
- 19. "I have a situation I'm facing, and I could use your help."
- 20. "What role would you like to play?"
- 21. "Who else do you think needs to be involved?"
- 22. "Let me tell you about an experience I had recently and what I learned from it. Maybe it can help you think about other ways to approach this project."
- 23. "This is what I know about the background on that decision..."
- 24. "From my perspective, this is important because. . ."
- 25. "My first reaction to your idea is that. . ."
- 26. "I was having trouble accepting ____, too. Eventually, it helped me to see this in a different light."
- 27. "I think you'll increase your chances of success if you. . ."
- 28. "I'm less concerned about. ... My bigger concern is . . . because. . . "
- 29. "What kind of support would you want to achieve your goal?"
- 30. "Before you move forward, what can I do to remove the barriers we identified?"
- 31. "I appreciate that you're looking to me for ideas. Why don't we explore the options you've all thought of before I offer any suggestions?"
- 32. "While I appreciate your vote of confidence, I think the group would rather hear directly from you because you have the expertise they're looking for. We could talk about how you might approach them, if that would help."
- 33. "What difficulties, if any, do you foresee? In which cases would my involvement help the most?"

To guarantee failure in changing an employee's behavior:

- 1. Don't get the employee involved; just talk at him.
- 2. Don't give specific feedback; talk in generalities.
- 3. Concentrate on attitude, rather than behavior.
- 4. Assume the employee understands that a problem exists.
- 5. Assume the employee knows what has to be done to solve the problem.
- 6. Don't follow up to insure the employee has taken the agreed-upon action.
- 7. Don't acknowledge or praise the employee when he improves the behavior.

Courageous Boundary Setting

- 1. Acknowledge Fear
- 2. Express "why"
- 3. Be clear and direct

Courageous Boundary Approach

It's hard for me to say this, but I want to be honest with you, I feel upset when our conversations revolve around office gossip. I feel uncomfortable and disloyal to the people we work with and to the company. Can we agree to stop gossiping?

"I know that in the past I've listened and shared my fair share of comments. but I'm trying to be more professional

And give people grace so I can't continue to talk about other people with you.

"I'm afraid of hurting you, but the health of our friendship is important to me, so I want you to know that I can't continue to gossip about other employees and our boss. Your friendship is important to me and I don't want to feel guilty about gossiping.

"I'm nervous to say this, but I'm making an effort to communicate more authentically with those close to me, so I need to tell you that I feel guilty when we gossip about people at work. I feel like a hypocrite when I talk about people behind their back and then look them in the eye when working with them. Can we discuss how to fix this?"

Two Key Benefits to Courageous Boundary Setting	Two Key	y Benefits to	Courageous	Boundary	/ Setting

	First, by naming your around setting the boundary, you acknowledge that you're initiating a difficult conversation that can elicit mixed feelings—for both of you. This also helps the recipient understand that you've taken into account this boundary could have on their feelings.
	Second, by expressing thebehind your boundary, you remind the recipient that your boundary isn't an attempt to control their behavior, but rather an attempt to protect yourself, be it your body, integrity, mental health, time, resources, or material goods. You might also emphasize your desire for in the relationship, each of which conveys a genuine intention to keep your relationship healthy.

The concept: An ideal team player embodies three virtues: humility, hunger and people smarts. The power this combination yields drastically accelerates and improves the process of building high-performing teams.

Humble

Ideal team players are humble. They lack excessive ego or concerns about status. Humble people are quick to point out the contributions of others and slow to seek attention for their own. They share credit, emphasize team over self and define success collectively rather than individually.

Hungry

Ideal team players are hungry. They are always looking for more. More things to do. More to learn. More responsibility to take on. Hungry people almost never have to be pushed by a manager to work harder because they are self-motivated and diligent. They are constantly thinking about the next step and the next opportunity.

Smart

Ideal team players are smart. They have common sense about people. Smart people tend to know what is happening in a group situation and how to deal with others in the most effective way. They have good judgment and intuition around the subtleties of group dynamics and the impact of their words and actions.

Humble, Hungry and Smart – The Three Virtues Combines

What makes humble, hungry and smart powerful and unique is not the individual attributes themselves, but rather the required combination of all three. If even one is missing in a team member, teamwork becomes significantly more difficult, and sometimes not possible.

True Humility is not thinking less of yourself: it is thinking of yourself less

Self-Assessment

Name:

Instructions

Take this assessment to evaluate yourself relative to the three virtues of an ideal team player. Respond as honestly as possible, as this will allow you to most accurately identify any areas of development that you may have.

Use the scale below to indicate how each statement applies to how you think your teammates may see you and your actions on the team. Choose the rating response number that best applies to each statement and record it in the box to the right of the statement. Then total your scores for each of the three virtues.

RATING SCALE: 3 = Usually, 2 = Sometimes, 1 = Rarely

HUMBLE

My teammates would say...

I compliment or praise them without hesitation.	SCORE:
I easily admit to my mistakes.	SCORE:
I am willing to take on lower-level work for the good of the team.	SCORE:
I gladly share credit for team accomplishments.	SCORE:
I readily acknowledge my weaknesses.	SCORE:
I offer and accept apologies graciously.	SCORE:

SCORING

Remember, the purpose of this tool is to help you explore and assess how you embody the three virtues of an ideal team player. The standards for "ideal" are high. An ideal team player will have few of these statements answered with anything lower than a '3' (usually) response.

A total score of 18 or 17 (in any virtue) is an indication that the virtue is a potential strength. A total score of 16 to 14 (in any virtue) is an indication that you most likely have some work to do around that virtue to become an ideal team player.

A total score of 13 or lower (in any virtue) is an indication that you need improvement around that virtue to become an ideal team player.

Finally, keep in mind that while this tool is quantitative, the real value will be found in the qualitative, developmental conversations among team members and their managers. Don't focus on the numbers, but rather the concepts and the individual statements where you may have scored low.

Assessing how well the team performs

To determine if the team is performing well, place a check mark beside each item that describes behavior present in the company or team.

Uses	Instead of
"We" or "Our"	"I" or "Me"
Shared responsibility	Finger-pointing
What needs to be done "By us"	Blaming
Working together to solve	Who did what wrong
Together Everyone Accomplishes More	Let me do it
Metrics or indicators of success	Just letting it happen
Collective work products	Individual work products
Seeks out others as resources	Goes it alone
Sees mistakes as learning points	Mistakes are punished
Celebrates success of others	Envies other's success
Gives praise readily	Constructive criticism only
Asks for other's input first	Speaks first, then asks for input
Success is organizational	Success is individual
Looks for "win-win" solutions	In competition it's "win-lose"
Delegation of tasks and duties to others	Want it right? Do it yourself!

Vulnerability & Trust

Myth: Don't let them see you sweat! Really??? Message: I'm not vulnerable, you shouldn't be either!

Truth: Absolutely let them see you sweat!

Message: I can trust you, you are acknowledging it is real

Can't build trust if we can't be vulnerable with our teams

A relationship without trust is like a car without gas, you can stay in it all you want, but it won't go anywhere.

Vulnerability

The emotion that we experience during times of uncertainty, risk, and emotional exposure.

Can You...

Manage uncertainty, risk and emotional exposure?

Stay in the hard conversation?

Tell the truth?

Give feedback when it's hard?

Ask for feedback when it's hard?

Income is more important	Personal development is more important

Best Practices Hiring, On-Boarding & Performance Reviews

Hiring Best Practices

- ✓ Ask yourself this question: Are you an Employer of Choice?
 - What is your candidate experience?
 - How do they find you? Website site? Career page?
 - Who is doing it right?
- ✓ Hire for the Right Fit
 - Establish the desired attributes (ranked) in the dream candidate

Attributes

- 1. Detail oriented
- 2. Willingness to learn
- 3. Organizational ability
- 4. Strong communication skills
- 5. Solution driven (enjoys puzzles)

✓	•••	he	Inte	1771	PIXI	,,

- Consult HR on the do's and don'ts of what you can and cannot ask/say
- Where possible use open-ended behavior-based questions
- If in doubt, 2nd interview or another interviewer

✓ Use of "HR Approved" profiling tools for the hiring process

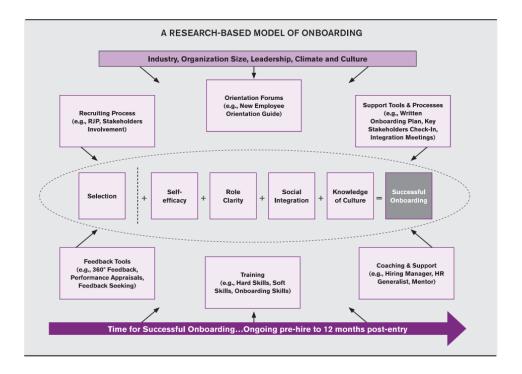

✓ What are your predictive indicators of turnover?

✓ Turnover – What does this look like? Who is leaving... the right people _____ or the wrong people _____.

✓	Never choose the	from the	this is called

Training/On-Boarding Best Practices

- ✓ See everything through the lens of the new hire
- ✓ The new hire process begins prior to the first day on the job
- ✓ Sample templates (handout)
- ✓ Have some of your newer hires assist in developing what the on-boarding experience should look like
- ✓ Ask yourself and your team this question:

 Training & On-board What does it look like today? What do you want it to look like?

Performance Reviews Best Practices

- ✓ Perfect Phrases for Performance Reviews (amazon.com)
- ✓ Ask for assistance with difficult phrases
- ✓ Expectations by position AND my team non-negotiables
- ✓ Are we measuring what is relevant to the job?
- ✓ Where possible, allow the team member to do their own self-evaluation or provide their insight into their performance ahead of you completing the evaluation.
- ✓ Be very specific with examples when identifying areas of weakness or improvement suggestions
- ✓ Focus on your observations not "here is what others are telling me about you"
- ✓ Complete performance reviews on time if not early PERIOD! What message do you send to your team member if you are late?
- ✓ NEVER leave "Supervisor Feedback" section blank what message does this send?
- ✓ Be HONEST in providing feedback. Giving all 5's is easier and less confrontational...
- ✓ Being clear is KIND, being unclear is UNKIND Brene' Brown

72% of employees say they thought their performance would improve if given accurate corrective feedback

74% of employees believe their performance reviews are inaccurate reflections of what they achieved at work – Harvard Business Review study

Leadership Expectations...What this could look like?

Operationalizing	Show up & take responsibility
your Values	Asking for Help
	Model the behavior you expect of your team
	Managing Commitments to Self & Others
	Have those courageous conversations
	Developing emotional literacy
	Giving & receiving feedback
	Building Trust
